

Tenders

The tendering process offers clients the opportunity to see all the competing bids for a transaction or project, up close and personal. Ensuring that this process remains both transparent and fair and produces the best result demands a partner with a distinct skillset. ZAG is that partner.

With a successful track record in administrative law, our Litigation and Dispute Resolution department is widely respected as a preferred destination for public and private companies, both Israeli and international companies, from a range of sectors, including computing, education, infrastructure, and many more.

For example, we advised a major Israeli IT company on petitions relating to government procurement tenders, and another leading company in the educational field on tenders for operating schools right across Israel.

We partner with clients on all aspects of the entire tender process, providing insightful counsel before, during and after the bids, tackling all issues relating to the tender documents and issues with subcontractors.

Once the results of the tender are known, we identify potential defects in the winning bids and plan any relevant appeal, leading challenges and petitions in the administrative courts, some of which have led to significant legal precedents.

Furthermore, our Litigation and Dispute Resolution department has vast experience in filing petitions to the High Court of Justice on matters of principal against government ministries and other administrative authorities, including challenging administrative decisions – activity which has led to precedential and fundamental rulings.
